

Air travel is already a nightmare. Having someone sitting so close shouting inanities into a cell phone could only make it worse. On top of that, cell phone users are not listening to important safety instructions that the pilot or attendants are attempting to explain. They would interfere with the other passengers' attempts to hear. Do not change this rule. Protect the sanity and safety of the average, no-call passenger.